The present invention relates to a ladder assembly, and more particularly to a portable ladder constructed to prevent the upper ends from being struck by overhead pipes, etc. Portable ladders have long been used in a number of different fields. These ladders are sometimes referred to as "folding ladders" and are intended to be moved and stored. These ladders have usually been provided in a small, compact unit, and are quite easy to transport. These ladders are usually quite light weight, since they are usually fabricated from aluminum or stainless steel tubing, and can weigh on the order of twenty-five to thirty-five pounds. Foldable ladders have in the past often utilized tubular legs which extend from end to end with the two ends being pivoted one with the other. This has been done to allow for folding of the ladder when not in use. Such ladders have in the past also had means to absorb impact energy, in an effort to prevent injury to the person using the ladder. However, many portable ladders have recently developed in which the upper ends of the ladder legs are supported by a number of different devices. These devices usually comprise brackets which are affixed to the upper ends of the ladder legs by welds or screws. Most of these brackets have sufficient open space between them and the bracket affixed to the side of the ladder to allow the legs to be folded up vertically. This has been used because the brackets are more easily assembled and disassembled to allow a user to store the ladder out

But when I write the same in my view ... ... It doesn't work. I have a class method that returns all the records from a certain model... def self.myfield # I have used self as a scope because I get a lot of duped counts # that way mymodel.all = 0
