It happened in the summer of 2006, and I was late for his funeral. I had been expected for a year previously so I felt I'd made amends. This time I arrived at the funeral parlour bright and early, when I saw my father's funeral notice hanging in the window. I quickly got on a train and arrived outside his local church at the exact time. I gave my usual polite knock on the gate, only to be greeted by the vicar. I felt the tears running down my face, and I was overcome with emotion, but I managed to mumble out an apology. My father may have died and been cremated, but the parish was very understanding and they carried on as normal, and he got the best service he could have wished for. No matter what anyone says, life goes on; and I can say that my father's life has been full of life, love, and most importantly, friendship. I will miss him so much, but his love and friendship will continue to stay with me in the memories of our wonderful times together.'
