A former Los Angeles police lieutenant has been sentenced to a decade in prison and ordered to pay $250,000 in restitution after pleading guilty to raping a woman and assaulting her with a baseball bat while she was recovering from surgery. Ron Steele, a 21-year veteran of the LAPD, pleaded guilty on Thursday to the rape and assault of the woman in her mid-20s. The victim's lawyer says his client is glad that Steele has been convicted. "For many years, many people did the right thing and identified and reported on this type of behavior," said Paige Gerber, who describes Steele as "one of the top commanders" of the department's elite mounted unit. "But the truth is that there were people at every level of police and prosecution that enabled this behavior to continue, that enabled this individual to have his career and to never face any discipline." Steele was initially accused in a lawsuit filed in early June by the woman of raping her in her Beverly Hills home during a break-in in May 2016. The woman, who police found unconscious in the house, had just undergone surgery on her knee and met Steele, who police say was a friend of her husband and a former security guard for the couple, outside an LA gym. He began hugging and kissing her, the lawsuit said, and then raped her. Steele eventually confessed to the crime, but the woman's husband had her later withdrew the suit. On Thursday, Steele was sentenced to 12 years, the maximum allowed under state law. As a condition of the plea deal, Steele must abstain from pornography, Gerber said. Steele's attorney, public defender Julian Blaise, declined to comment when reached by telephone. Steele pleaded guilty in March to a lesser assault charge for the April 2016 attack on the same woman with a baseball bat. The defendant's lawyer, Thomas Estaville, had sought a plea deal for his client, saying he had a medical condition and needed to provide psychological care to his family. Gerber says Steele has yet to pay the required restitution. The Los Angeles City Council has been reviewing the LAPD's employee discipline system in light of the Steele case. The review follows the resignation of the police chief and a review last year of internal affairs led by former U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder. ___ The use of the Internet is subject to the sites' terms and conditions and privacy policies bff6bb2d33

One option available to users is information handling systems. An information handling system generally processes, compiles, stores, and/or communicates information or data for business, personal, or other purposes thereby allowing users to take advantage of the value of the information. Because technology and information handling needs and requirements vary between different users or applications, information handling systems may also vary regarding what information is handled, how the information is handled, how much information is processed, stored, or communicated, and how quickly and efficiently the information may be processed, stored, or communicated. The variations in information handling systems allow for information handling systems to be general or configured for a specific user or specific use such as financial transaction processing, airline reservations, enterprise data storage, or global communications.
