Then I tested the following line of code but it does not add the imported data into the database. Do I have to delete and re-create the database before the import will work? sqlite3 datab.sqlite sqlite3 datab .mode text sqlite3 datab.sqlite "import sales.csv" A: .mode text should not be necessary when using sqlite3 on linux. But when you use a database with sqlite3, all commands written with '.' are automatically within a transaction. So, to import a file into a database you just have to do: .mode csv sqlite3 datab.sqlite "import sales.csv" You should also add a.close to.mode csv, in case the file does not end with csv and contains at least one line without a field. For example, if you have a file with data like: a,b,c d,e,f You would load data like: `sqlite3 datab.sqlite "import sales.csv".mode csv .open datab.sql`
