As mentioned in the Introduction (Section 5.2), the Chinese dynasty was characterized by an emphasis on the proper hierarchical order of things. Although the Wei and Jin particularly illustrated "the proper order" from the point of view of the ruling group, it can be said that Chinese communities in general shared this particular concept of the proper order. By contrast, the Western rulers took the opposite perspective, and became the rulers whose social order was of concern. From the Chinese perspective, there was no challenge to the social order. For the Chinese, the anxiety of the Western rulers was just a phantom.. Heroes Of Might And Magic Tribes Of The East Cracked. 14 Oct 2011.
