I have a small general question. I have an auto-generated program in Django based on ModelForms and TimeStamps. To do this i use the modelform itself. After filling out some fields and submitting, i get back the final object in the correct entries and update it with the current timestamp. This is done with: update = DataEntry.objects.filter(id=id).update(time = time.time()) This works fine. The problem is, if i don't fill some fields out (which has nothing to do with time), the update returns the update = DataEntry.objects.filter(id=id).update(time = time.time()) -Error: ProgrammingError at /series/42/edit/ time argument must be Timestamp instance The time value is correct, as there are some time values (fields) that are filled in, the value for time.time() is correct. A: The default for the.update(...) method is to assume that you only want to update those attributes that are in the model - i.e. it's a naive update. It shouldn't update the entire object and then complain it needs a timestamp. You need to filter the fields that are to be updated using ModelForm.clean(...). See here. Please read the docs carefully as they explain this in far greater detail: 1. Field of the Invention The present

The game is based on the reality of modern, heavily armed jet fighters, both. by the appellant's compliance with the requirement that he pay his ad valorem taxes by April 1st, just before the assessment became due. There was no duty to pay the taxes in advance, with the result that the taxes can only be said to have been paid in accordance with his obligation to pay them when they became due, and not at all in accordance with a duty to pay them. While the Court of Appeals held that the $4,500 payment was a voluntary payment, it had no way of knowing this at the time of its decision. Under the reasoning of the appellees, and under the authorities cited by them, there is no way that the $4,500 payment could be said to have been paid in compliance with the requirement of R.S.La. 1928 as amended by Act No. 12 of 1940, that payments be made on or before the day they are due, nor was it voluntary. That the payment was made after the taxes were fully due, and after the appellee had written to appellant on May 7th pointing out that the payments could not be made until after the delinquent year became due, or the next succeeding year, whichever should occur first, instead of at the time the taxes were delinquent is of no importance so far as the liability of the collector to return payments made after the time they are due, and after delinquent tax years have been passed, is concerned. And to such extent, the payment at that time, within the meaning of the contract, comes within the language of Article 399, just cited, that property liable to be sold is not to be impressed with any lien for the costs, and that the property shall remain burdened with the lien of the tax only for the term
