I have written the API using Web API 2.0 by following the chapter 22 of "C# in the.NET 4.5 Framework". In this API I have written two controllers which are like shown below. Controller1: public class UserController : ApiController { private MyDBEntities context; // GET api/User [HttpGet] public IEnumerable GetUser() { return context.Users.AsEnumerable(); } } Controller2: public class MyDBEntities : IDisposable { public MyDBEntities() { this.Database.Initialize(false); } public System.Data.Entity.DbSet Users { get; set; } protected override void Dispose(bool disposing) { if (this.context!= null) { this.context.Dispose(); } } } Now the question is How can I make the controller classes as a class library and call them from AngularJS client as REST API. The names of the classes is same as that of the API but with [HttpGet] then in place of that I need to pass the AngularJS code as "GET". For example, In this tutorial I have used the following in AngularJS client: var myDb = new MyDBEntities d0c515b9f4
