All layer styles are available on the Layers palette. Changing the Scale of an Object You may sometimes encounter an image on the web that has an object of a size or scale that seems to be out of proportion with that object's placement in the image. The first method for changing the size of an object involves changing its scale using the Scale tool and the Align icons. To access the Scale tool, choose it from the toolbox, as shown in Figure 1-7. The tool is on the top-right side of the Tools panel, and the Align icons are on the panel's bottom. If you don't see the Align icons on the panel's right edge, choose View → Toolbars → Align Icons, as shown in Figure 1-7, or press the Ctrl+1 keyboard shortcut. Use the Scale tool in the following ways:

- To resize an object by changing its size, place your cursor over the object and drag it to enlarge or decrease its size. The object increases or decreases in size as you move the cursor. Each time you move the cursor, you see a change in the size of the object.
- To resize an object to exact dimensions, enter values into the boxes that appear as you move the cursor over the object.
- To change the size and spacing of your objects, choose Select → Transform → Scale from the main menu. The Scale dialog box opens, and you can enter values into the boxes at the bottom of the dialog box to resize objects within your image. You can also zoom in and out by pressing Ctrl and the + or - keyboard shortcuts. You can select an object and zoom in on its size by choosing Edit → Transform → Scale. You can also zoom out by choosing Edit → Transform → Scale. To change the text size, place your cursor over the text and click the mouse button to see a Size box appear. Move the cursor over the box and click it again to enter the size. You can also zoom in by pressing Ctrl and the + or - keyboard shortcuts. To align two objects so that they appear side by side, align them to the ruler, as described in the next section.

Figure 1-7: Use the scale tool to make or break an image. Aligning Objects You can align objects that are of the same color and/or size in a photograph by aligning them to the ruler.
