pixel & co is a geometric sans serif that's specifically designed to replicate the fonts appearance from pixies.it was created by eric meyer. i designed it with love and serious intentions. what can we say? its not meant to be another font, its meant to be its own self. a hybrid of the greatest ideas of the past and yet contemporary in its format and function. golab serif is a geometric, no-frills serif typeface designed by colin a. ward. it features a single slope and a series of rounded corners and a graceful caret. it is best suited for text headlines, menus, and first lines of novels. oswald's typeface family is made up of a series of serif and sans serif designs, each unique, combining both elegance and utility. each design features a rich component palette. it serves as a strong foundation for any type of design, starting from print to digital. oswald is a rich geometric typeface inspired by the old-school typographic design. simultaneously frugal and luxurious, it provides a typical din-a4 font, but with a still-satisfying reading experience. the two letters that are at the heart of the keyboard itself, the q (£) and w (□), have a long history in the arabic world as the most commonly used letter pair.

this year marks the 21st anniversary of the push-button arabic keyboard, a revolutionary product that has been praised by the bbc for its ability to connect the users of the arabic world to the outside world, and later for its ease of use. apart from perhaps a few more boxes to check, we see no reason that it can not do the same for millions of users. 5ec8ef588b
