At the beginning of this file, which can be very long, there is a tag that represents the title. In the header that follows the tag, you see numbers representing the frequency and delay values #f#d# for each of the audio sources. For example, for the sound "m", the frequency is 9, the delay is 0, and for the sound "y", the frequency is 9, the delay is 1. If you want your sound sources to be displayed relative to each other, you can use the retin"alternate"
