One of the greatest things about the visual novel are the characters themselves. Many of them are very heart-warming characters, especially to women, and many of them have become a part of many girls' school memories. As stated before, it's recommended to watch the anime's episodes and, if possible, read all of the visual novels so you can understand the series in a better way. The time needed will be the same as for any visual novel; it will take you about 9 hours to finish. Kodaka expressed that they were interested in the concept "someone is going to die; someone is going to save them; someone is going to die; someone is going to save them" as a theme for the new game. The basic concept for the game was to make a game which was short and simple but was able to have a large number of choices for the player, and this could be accomplished through a visual novel. Kodaka stated that this, in contrast to previous games, did not use gameplay in a frantic action sequence. Hakoniwa Academy is a fictional high school in the city of Hakoniwa, Japan. During the game, a murder occurs at Hakoniwa Academy, resulting in the deaths of many of the students. Those left alive—the protagonist, Chihiro Fujisaki, and several others—are pitted against the surviving members of the school's killer in a battle of survival. Hakoniwa Academy is intended to be a secondary setting for the game; the main setting is a near-future metropolis described only as being within a "central Asia-like region". The game allows players to choose various endings based on their actions. The game's first print edition contains eight different variations of the game that relate to the player's choices. In addition, a preview version of the game, along with the prologue, was leaked online in November 2007 and remains on numerous websites, leading to a dispute between Kodaka and Spike when the latter attempted to purchase all instances of the game in its release. The preview version was sold out of its limited print run of 1,500 copies. The game was developed by Spike Chunsoft under the label "Rice Software" (as established by Spike's internal development team) and was in development at the same time as the two-part Danganronpa. The game was released on July 23, 2009 for the PlayStation Portable (PSP), under the title Visual Novel Maker: Hakoniwa Academy. The port followed the same gameplay structure, but used less gore. Later, a version for the Wii was developed. The game received mixed reviews. It received a score of 62.50% at GameRankings based on 34 reviews, and 65/100 at Metacritic based on 37 reviews. The title was nominated for a "2009 Game Award" at the 2009 Japanese Game Awards, but it lost to Danganronpa. On June 10, 2011, Nintendo announced that Visual Novel Maker would be available in North America for $19.99 at ERS and Gamestop. On June 14, 2012, it was announced that the Wii version of the game would be released in Japan on June 27, 2012. The game was released in the United States on June 26, 2012. It was developed by Playdigious and published by NIS America under the title Visual Novel Maker: English School Girls. There was an official soundtrack, produced by Hitoshi Sakimoto (of the game Boogiepop Phantom) and Naoki Kobayashi (of the game Guilty Crown). The soundtrack, named "Visual Novel Maker: Bakuman", was released in three versions: "Visual Novel Maker: Bakuman", "Visual Novel Maker: Bakuman Extended Edition" and "Visual Novel Maker: Bakuman Collector's Edition". The Japanese version of the game and the Japanese soundtrack's two versions are included in the "Visual Novel Maker: Bakuman Limited Edition" version and the "Visual Novel Maker: Bakuman Collector's Edition" versions. The other versions of the soundtrack are exclusively offered in the Japanese versions of the game. Sec8ef588b
