The federal government is running an active-record keeping system that documents the seizure of illegal firearms and the disposal of them.

Newmarket police received a notification

Wednesday that the federal government has seized a firearm at the cannabis shop. "Federal agents were working at the shop," said Newmarket police Sgt. Michael Todd. "They were asking them for their permit, their tax stamp, where they were buying it and they were told the firearm had been seized at the location," he said. "They seized it, they checked the serial number and found that the firearm had been lost or stolen a long time ago and it was retrieved." The RCMP has the sole responsibility for the gun register and the seizure of weapons at the cannabis shop, Todd said. "There are a number of possible reasons for (seizing) a firearm," said police spokeswoman Sgt. Audrey Kappel. "There are several reasons for the possession of a firearm by a person who is a prohibited person under the Criminal Code, and it can vary from a purchase for a specific purpose (such as target practice) to possession or acquiring a firearm that's not registered to that person. "The firearm could have been stolen and they're going to try to find the rightful owner. They could have been lost and they're trying to find the owner to return it," Kappel said. Police said the law allows them to keep records of firearms that have been legally seized. I see. Sure would be nice if things could be returned to their rightful owners. You bought a gun and your license lapsed? They can keep that gun if they want to, that's not the problem, you don't have a right to it. Same thing here, you buy a gun and can't keep it because it's stolen? They can keep that. And if the person is illegal? I've mentioned this before but people seem to forget. Would the police take a gun away from you if you brought it into a bar and let them know you weren't legal to possess it? This is America. They can do anything they want. As for registration. If you have a serial number, that's good enough. If you don't, you're not legal to own a firearm. If you can't be bothered to read the law, that's your problem. Sure would be nice if things could be returned to their rightful owners. You bought a gun and your license lapsed? They can keep that gun if they want to, that's not Diabetes management in Bahrain: an audit study. In the Kingdom of Bahrain, public awareness of diabetes mellitus (DM) is low. This has resulted in under-diagnosis, inadequate treatment and poor compliance with DM care guidelines. The objective of this study was to assess the knowledge and practice of DM management among endocrinologists in the private sector. There is no official data regarding the prevalence of DM in Bahrain. A survey of 210 general practitioners (GPs), 55 district hospitals' specialists, and 2 representatives of the ministry of health was conducted. This included a pretested questionnaire, a knowledge quiz and an evaluation of the participants' practice of DM management.
